JUST RECEIVED, the following works of J. V. Huntington:

The Pretty Plate, (juvenile.) 50 cents. The Fretty Fate, (Juvenies,) or celes.

"Leity Alice is decidedly a work of genius. Indeed, we know of few fictions where this first and highest excellence is more apparent."

[Hoston Post.]

"This is an extraordinary book. "That the auther was animated by a deeper emotion than that of the production of a clever and somewhat surprising novel which should make a great sensation, we are perfectly satisfied. "A graceful fancy, and even a high runginative power, are unsparingly exercised throughout."—Douglass Jerrold's Weekly Nees. "Talent of a high order teems on every page."

[London New Monthly Mag

"Besides the admirable sketches of society, the story of 'Alban Atherton' has a great purpose."—London New Monkly.

"The young lady characters in 'Alban' are just such girls as we have all known and some of us perhaps have loved."—Whig Review. "The Forest' is one of the fluest pictures ever painted of an out-door life in the wild regions of this State; and we speak with a virid memory of all that Cooper and Hoffman have done. Its delineations of individual character are hardly less admirable."

[N. T. Courier and Enquirer.

other underest public rates of the RNASHA on Monday, the fifth day of April next, the townships on the route of the road from "Fond da Lac, on Lake Winnebago, northerly to the State line," viz:

North of the lace line and earl of the fourth principal meridian. "Woods, lakes, and water-falls, the forest clearing, and the mountain wilderness attract Mr. Huntington with the freshness and variety of a new inspiration."—N. Y. Literary World. "The descriptive powers evinced in 'The Ferest' are extraordina y."—N. F. Econgelist.

"The discriptive lower's crimer in the Forest are extraordinary."—N. F. Enangelist.

"The finest portions of the work are the descriptions of hunting and of the grand scenery of the North. Here the author's thought flows in native channels, and the beautiful pictures of the wild woods and lakes, and the myriad phases of nature to forest, stream, and mountain, are painted with masterly and poetic skill.

"The author's power of description is truly extraordinary; the penpainings are as exquisite in their kind as the colored landscapes of the masters. Vou see that the man bas drunk in art from his earliest life, and has the artist's double genius, appreciation, fad reproduction. Whatever may be the subject, it is placed before us with a vivid, a living beauty, equalled by no American scriier we know."

[Donald MacLeod in the N. Y. Freeman's Journal.

"That Mr. Huntington has such a faculty and gifts may be seen by Ing beauty, equalled by no American writer we know."

[Domaid MacLood in the N. F. Freeman's Journal.

"That Mr. Huntington has such a faculty and gifts may be seen by any one who will read ten pages of "the Forest." The sports, the adventures of an Indian hunting-ground, are put before the reader's mind with the sharp outlines, the humor, and the breadth of real life. The incidents of the journey through the wilderness, the moral interest growing up like flowers out of the commonest material facts, are charmingly described."—London Athenaum.

"We renture to say that no reader, great or small, who takes up this book ("The Fretty Plate") will lay it down untinished. It tells the story of a story told to half a dozen children in a free-lit parlor. Their comments point in a few words the character of those who make them with such graphic power that we see the inteners before us. In this respect the book is quite remarkable. We have not met with one in which juvenile character was so discriminated and portrayed."

The coal bank belonging to and from which this company will operate is situated in Callaway county, in the State of Miscorri lying about four miles from the Missouri river, on the opposite bank from Jefferson city, and one hundred and twenty five miles from Louis by railroad. It is a gentle inclined plane from the river to the coal bank, no valleys or hills inter reining, giving the company every advantage possible over any other bank that in yet known in the United States. So far as relates to navigation, the case with which the coal can be delivered to the Missouri river, the great demand for the coal on by the steamboats, the central profition of the bank for supplying the northern, western, and northwestern countries, togotiars with the North of the base line and west of the fourth principal meridian.

No slate or impurities are contained in it. But one great mass of the cannel coal, deposited to a depth as yet unknown, (a depth of about one hundred and sixty area, clear, pare, and rich as the richest, it possesses all the requisitors for generating gas, and, in fact, is now being used for that porpose in Jefferson city. In addition to the Musouri river for navigation, which is equal to any navigable waters in the world, we have railroads both, being built, and projected in almost every direction from Jefferson city, opening for the distribution of this coal the whole North, West, and northwestern country, where fuel, from its scarcity, has become an institud in importance. The following is an estimate of the expense of mining and delivering the coal on the bank of the bissouri river, to the amount of three millions of bushels per year, for the age of susmibious, and to supply orders that will be made from all parts of the western country, together with one million of bushels; For mining, one cent per bushel.
